Dear Mr. Morris,

Your letter of 23 March inviting me to the Prime Minister's April 26th seminar on global climate change has only just reached me via a circuitous route.

I am delighted to accept the invitation and apologise for my slowness in doing so. I look forward to receiving your note outlining a basis for discussion and hope that this will also list the other people attending the seminar and, if it assigns particular roles or presentations to individuals, does so as early as possible in order to allow adequate time for preparation.

Please note that I can be reached most rapidly at the address above, where I shall be working throughout April except for (climate change) meetings abroad from April 11 - 17.

Yours sincerely,

Gerald Leach

Dear Mr Morris,

Thank you for your letter of 23rd March inviting me to a seminar at 10 Downing Street on The Greenhouse Effect.

I apologise for my slight delay in responding. This was because I had another commitment on 26th April, which I have had to disengage myself from.

Happily I have now cleared the day and I look forward to receiving further information from you on the programme for the event. Will it be possible to have an advance list of those attending?

Yours sincerely,

Robin Paul

Dear Dominic

Thank you for your letter dated 23 March, concerning the seminar on the 26 April. Sir Francis will be very pleased to attend.

I have spoken to your office and established that the seminar may not finish until about 4 o'clock. I should therefore point out that if this is the case, he may have to leave the seminar before it ends. I hope this will not cause a problem.

Yours sincerely
